

ABSTRACT

An inflatable play structure has a wind passage that helps stabilize the structure in high winds. The wind passage can be any suitable size or shape, but preferably has a vertical cross-section area of at least 0.5 m^2 , and at least 1 m^2 for each m of structure height. The 5 wind passage is especially useful for inflatable structures having slides.